Day, the villagers assemble at this stone and the Duke's Day, the villagers assemble at this stone and the Duke's agent reads a notice requiring the payment of cortain "wroth silver" and proclaiming that in default of payment the forfeit will be twenty shillings for every penny and a white bull with red cars and red nose. The names of the persons and parishes liable are then read and the silver is thrown into a cavity in the stone, whence it is removed by the attendant ballift. Subsequently the principal actors in this queer performance breakfast together at the Duke's expense.

MUSIC.

I PURITANI AND RIGOLETTO.

Operas of the old Italian list were given at the two opera houses last night-"I Puritani" at the Academy and "Rigoletto" at the Metropolitan. Both performances were spirited, though the best was that at the new house, where a change from Sig-Guadagaini (who sang the title rôle at the first performance of "Rigoletto") to Sig Del Puente effected a great improvement. The Gilda was again Mme. Sembrich, who, being in excellent voice, lifted the impersonation to the plane of her best work. What her best work is the musical people of New-York know; it is hardly second to anything that we have been favored with for years. The other parts were in the old hands-Maddalena, Mmc. Scalchi; Il Duca, Sig. Stague; Sparafuelle, Sig. Novara, and the minor male characters, M. Augier, and Signort Contini, Grazzi, and Corsini. It was, the bill said, the last performance of the opera, which means, undoubtedly, the last performance of ence of the fall season. Mr. Abbey has still three weeks before the holidays, when his first season ends, and as he continues to make announcemeats of additions to his list the signs are that the three weeks will be crowded with interesting performances. "La Gloconda," for which elaborate stage settings are preparing, will probably be given within a fortnight. For week the announcements include a repetition of "Lucia" on Monday, and first performances "Mefistofele" and "Carmen" on Wednesday and Friday respectively. Sig. Campanint is the tenor of the week, and his brother, Cleorente, the conductor of the last two operas. In "Carmen" the title rôle will be filled by Mme. Trebelli, the original interpreter of the part in London.

Mme. Gerster and Sig. Galassi were the able carriers of the artistic burden at the Academy, though they had better help than usual from Sig. Vicini, who was considerably more musical than at his last performance in Faust." With Mme. Gerster he won a demand for a repetition of the duet in the last act. Signori Galassi and Cherubini accomplished the same feat in the so-called "liberty duet." Mme. Gerster's individual triumph was in the polacea of the first act which she gave a secord time on an enthusiastic demand. Nothing could surpass the conscientionsness of this charming singer nor the devotion with which she mas worked to save Mr. Mapleson's season. Next week she will sing in Philadelphia as Lucia, on Tuesday, and on Friday she will appear here in "L'Ellist d'Amore" for the first time. Mme. Patti will sing in "La Traviata" this afternoon; the performance cannot fail to be brilliant, and the sale of seats indicates a crowded house. On Monday Mme. Giglio Nordica will appear for the second time in "Faust." Galassi and Cherubini accomplished

MR. MAPLESON AND MADAME PATTI.

Mr. Mapleson was busy yesterday concocting an advertisement for the morning papers which he in-formed a Tribune reporter would "strike the fellow at the other house dumb." He blew vigorously down a speak-ing tube and told the assistant at the other end-thereof to "hurry up," and then wheeled round in his chair.
"I am trying to persuade Patti," he said, "to give an extra matinee performance of 'Aida' next Saturday. The performance last Wednesday was such an over-whelming success that I am sure I shall have a full house if she consents to sing. By the way, I noticed that one critic used very harsh language in criticising what he calls the 'abominable cadenza sne saw fit to introduce.' I wonder whether it would surprise the writer to learn that the 'abominable cadenza' was written by Verdi that the 'abominable cadenza' was written by Verdi himself. Madame Patti has the original manuscript and will, I am sure, be happy to show it to her intelligent critic."

"Is your approaching departure to Philadelphia due to a desire to get ahead of Abbey!"

"Abbey! Abbey! No, dear boy, Abbey does not exist for me. I go because I think the holiday season in New-York is poor for business. People are shopping, calling, receiving their friends, doing, in fact, half a hundred things which prevent their coming to the opera. At a special meeting of the directors last Wednesday night they unanimously approved my proposal. By the way, I hear terrible things of 'Dou Giovanni' at the place up town last Wednesday. Foor old Mozart must have turned in his grave at Salzburg, in shame and agony."

"Is it true that Madame Patti's boudoir car is to cost over $50,000 if"

"It is to cost $63,000, deah boy, and will be cheap at over $50,000 ?"

"It is to cost $63,000, dealt boy, and will be cheap at the money."
"Who pays for it ?"

"I do."
I do."
Is that part of your contract with her !"
Oh dear, no. It is just to please her."
What will you do with it when she is not using it !"
Keep it. Probably have a museum built expressly for

A SUCCESSFUL NEW PLAY. [GENERAL PRESS DISPATCH.]

Washington, Nov. 30 .- "For Congress," John T. Raymond's new play, was produced at the National Theatre, in this city, this evening, for the first time since it finally left the author's hands. The house was crowded. Mr. Raymond was called before the curwas crowded. Ar. Raymond was called a detection at the end of the third act, in response to loud ealls for the author, introduced to the audience Mr. D. D. Lioyd of THE NEW-YORK THIBUNE, who was complimented by prolonged applicance. The apparently unanimous sentiment of the audience was one of hearty approval. The President and many other posple of national note were present.

A NEW-YORK STAGE MACHINIST KILLED.

SELMA, Ala., Nov. 30 .- E. K. Marshall, the stage machinist of the Madison Square "Rajah" Con pany, was accidentally killed here last night. In the darkness he opened a wrong door, and walked off an exposed landing on the second story of the Southern Hotel, posed landing on the second story of the object.

falling into the court below, a distance of twenty feet, and breaking his neck. The deceased lived in New-York.

He leaves a widow and family. The verdict of the Coroner's jury strongly censures the botel owners for not using proper precautions against such accidents.

JEFFERSON RECOVERS HIS VOICE.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 30 .- Joseph Jefferson arrived here last night. His voice has returned, and he is in a fair way toward recovering its full use.

THE WHISKEY TAX DISTRIBUTION.

& CORMESPONDENT WHO THINKS MR. BLAINE'S SCHEME UNCONSTITUTIONAL-THE PRECEDENTS THE OTHER WAY.

To the Editor of The Tribune.

SIR: The editorial on "Mr. Blaine and the Whiskey Tax," in your issue of this date, mentions some objections to his proposition. But there is an objection of considerable importance which you do not mention, and which does not seem to have occurred to Mr. Blaine. There is a document known as the Constitution of the United States of America, which prescribes and rigidly limits the power of the United States Government. By that document Congress is given power "to lay and collect taxes, duties, imposts and excises, to pay the debts and provide for the common defence and general welfare of the United States." This is the only purpose for which Congress can tax whiskey or anything else. The revenue derived from other sources being sufficient to meet the purposes for which Congress can lay and to meet the purposes for which Congress can lay and collect taxes, Mr. Blaine sees in the $86,000,000 collected annually by the whiskey tax "a rare opportunity to relieve taxation in the States," and proposes that Congress should lay and collect $86,000,000 of taxes annually to be distributed among the States to be used in acfraying the expenses of the State Governments. Is it not amazing that a statesman so distinguished as James G. Blaine should publicly advocate a measure for which there is not the slightest warrant, either in the letter or the spirit of the Constitution † Reepectfully yours, Mainhall P. Stafford.

Lotes Club, New-York, Nov. 29, 1883.

THE OTHER SIDE-WEBSTER, JACKSON, EWING.

From The Philadelphia Press.

This attempt to limit the application of the This attempt to limit the application of the precedent made half a century ago in distributing the Pederal surplus among the States might be successful, if the action taken then, proposed by Jackson, urged by Calhoun, supported by Webster and approved by Critenden, McKean and Ewing, had not begun and ended in the proposition to continue taxation to provide a surplus. It was not merely the sum accidentally in the National Treasury which President Jackson proposed to distribute, in the message in whitch, in December, 1830, he arged that the objection to Internal improvements carried on by the National Government be met by distributing the surplus revenue to the States. The tariff, he pointed out, was certain "a until a remote period," to yield a revenue too large for the Federal Government. The lest use to which this steady and recurrent surplus could be put, in his judgment, was to let the States spend it, each state receiving "its quota of the National revenue for domestic use, upon a fixed principle, as a matter of right, and from a fund to the creation of which it had itself contributed its fair proportion." The plan which Mr. Blaine proposes could scarcely be better described. "Should this measure not be found warranted by the Constitution," President Jackson proposed in his first message an amendment. A year later he appears to have concluded that a warrant existed for the course proposed. Mr. Calhoun, who began his advocacy of the plan by the introduction of a Constitutional amendment in the XxIIId Congress, pressed it subsequently in a bill. Two years later, when the same subject was before Congress, the distinct issue raised in debate, was that presented by Jackson—a surplus deliberately created by tax-ation—and two years earlier, in a bill proposed by Mahion Dickerson, which got no further than the Senate, a fixed sumply, an accidental surplus, although the edicated, but a regular distribution of the proceeds of taxation levied by the Federal Government which was proposed and accepted as Constitutional proper to suggest to our correspondent that there was once a gentleman in the United States named Daniel Webster, whose opinions on the Constitution were, in his day, thought of some weight.—Ed.]

RUINS OF THE WINDSOR THEATRE. THE ENTIRE LOSS ABOUT $187,000.

PLANS OF THE MANAGERS-THE THEATRE CONSID-ERED UNSAFE.

The fire at the Windsor Theatre and Hartmann House on Thursday evening was due to a defective flue in the kitchen of the hotel. The loss of the managers, Stevens and Murtha, will amount to about $30,000. though if the prospective profits were counted that sum would be considerably increased. The loss of William A. Martin, the owner of the building, will not exceed $100,000. The Hartmann House, which included all the rooms of the building except those given up to the the-atre, was leased by J. Kremer, whose loss is about $5,000. The building was insured for $50,000. South of the hotel was a building the upper part of which was ecupied as a lodging-house, the furniture in which was occupied as a lodging-house, the furniture in which was a complete loss, amounting to about $4,000. The loss of Louis Reinken, who kept an eating-room on the ground-floor, is about $5,000. The loss to Mr. Hall, the owner of the building, is about $20,000. The Eden Concert Hall, which occupied a portion of the same building, was destroyed with a loss of $2,000. The large marble-front building, Nos. 37 and 3712, was damaged to such an exent that portions of all the floors fell. The loss of Schnitzer, Israel & Co. is about $15,000. The loss on the milding, which belonged to the Aleen estate, is about The partition walls in all these buildings were endered thoroughly unsafe by the fire. The losses in the small shops and liquor stores in the burned buildings amount to about $20,000, while the losses in the tene-ment houses in Chrystie-st. are about $3,000. The total oss is about $187,000.

The manager of the theatre, John A. Stevens, said yesterday afternoon that he could not state exactly when the theatre would be rebuilt, but the work would be begun as soon as Mr. Martin came to a settlement with the insurance companies. "We have no settlements of that kind to make," he said in reply to a question; "as we had "We have no settlements of that no insurance. In the meanwhile we shall open in the Twenty Third Street Theatre next week with ' The Black Flag.' All the present employes of the theatre go with us to the new quarters."

Mr. Parsloe, of the Aldrich & Parsloe "My Partner Combination, was found at the Morton House and said: We shall probably lose some $15,000 or $20,000, but our business will of course be damaged to a much greater extent. We travel with our own scenery and properties and our company have, of course, lost all their wardrobes. Some of them have lost their private wardrobe as well, and such as have are in a pitiful plight." "The Stadt Theatre was built some twenty years ago.

"The Stadt Theatre was built some twenty years ago, being opened, as well as I remember, early in 1864," said a well-known manager up town, "and from the beginning was a looing investment. From an artistic point of view, however, it has seen some striking successes. There it was that Wachtel sang and was unsuccessful as a manager as he was successful as an artist. Secboch, too, and Dawison, the tragedian, appeared there, as well as Haase and the L'Arronges. It was at this sheatre that Wagner's operas were first introduced to the American public, and that fact alone, to some people, was enough to make the place famous. About five years ago the Stadt had come to the too far down town to enjoy even the partial favor of its former constituents. Then John Stevens, known up to that time only as a popular actor of a certain line of melodrama, obtained the theatre on a favorable lease. It was it March, 1874, that he opened it under the name of the Windsor, and from the first he has made it pay, waite for the last three years kis receipts must have been large. He found that by playing up-town successes to down-town antiences at popular prices, he could fill his house season after season, and as the fact began to be more generally known, people who have been accustomed to pay their dollar and a half for seeing a new play have lately been accustomed to wait until it went down to the Windsor, when they could see the same play, the same company and the same secnery for half the money.

Inspector Esterbrook said: "I have thought of that theatre overy week for more than a year with dread lest their should be a cosily sacrifice of his. My chorts were not confined to the proceedings before Judge Van Brunt, mentioned by The Tribuxs this morthing. All that could be done by the Bureau of Buildings, in the effort to make the place safe, has been done. The afterney has been of exit. The former method of exit through the owners of the buildings in the effort to make the pushing street fisca

CARTRIDGE MAKERS COMBINE.

FOUR LARGE COMPANIES STOP COMPETITION BE-TWEEN THEMSELVES.

INT TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE.] NEW-HAVEN, Nov. 30 .- The Howard and Salisbury paper and metallic shotgun shell makers of this city announced, a few days ago, that they were going out of business. There are several of this class of manufacturers in connection and they are in constant comnunication with other cartridge makers throughout the country. An uneasy feeling has been caused among them by a report to the effect that the big concerns in the same line of business have formed a combination, and will in future act together, to control the eartridge manufacturing industry of the country, regulate prices and the supply, and crush out smaller firms. W. W. Converse, president of the Winchester Repeat-

w. W. Company, in an interview says: "The rumors have little foundation, and they are so distorted that scarcely a grain of truth is left in them. As for the idea that we are going to freeze out the smaller makers, it is absurd; because there are no small makers to freeze out. that we are going to freeze out the smaller makers, it is absurd; because there are no small makers to freeze out. In the United States there are four large concerns only, which make a full line of anamunition. Those are the Union Metalile Company, of Bridgeport; the United States, of Lowell; the Phenix, of South Coventry, Coun.; and the Winchester Arms Company, of this city. The Remingtons of illon are making only a few special sizes of cartridges, and there is a firm in Philadelphia that is making a 22 shot and a 38, and no other small makers exist to my knowledge, but there may be a number of small firms engaged in manufacturing paper and brass shells. With these we have little to do. For five years the large companies competed to a rainous degree; about nine months are they arrived at an amicable understanding. What we have done is simply what has been done a number of times by the trunk railroads. They have a entrate war, and fight each other, and then get together and are good boys. The report that we have bongist out Howard & Salisbury, the shot gan shell makers, is without foundation. I assure you that we have done nothing, and will not do anything, that is not perfectly right and just, both from a logal and a moral point of view. The association that we have formed is called "The United States Cartridge Manufacturing Association," and it comprises the four large companies. I was elected president, and I still hold that position."

COUNTY DEMOCRACY DOINGS.

The County Democracy Executive Committee met last evening at the headquarters, No.1 Union Square. Commissioner Thompson said that it was necessary that the County Committee should meet and postpone the holding of primaries, which otherwise would have to be held on December 11. The organization had shown strength in some unexpected quarters and weakness where strength was expected. There would be some changes in the composition of the new committee, and it was advisable to wait until January before holding the primaries. He moved that the Executive Committee prepare a resolution, to be submitted to the County Committee next Tuesday, that the primaries be held on January 10. This was carried.

Commissioner Thompson offered a resolution that a Commissioner Thompson offered a resolution that a committee of one from each Assembly district be suggested to the County Committee for the purpose of inquiring into the condition of the various Assembly district organizations. Justice Norton moved that the committee be composed of nine and that the chairman be added to it. This was carried, Chairman Power announced as the committee Justices White, O'Reilly, Power, Murray and Norton, Commissioners Thompson and Purroy, Charies Reilly, John Keenau and Thomas Costigan.

A committee of five was appointed to prepare suitable resolutions on the death of the former chairman of the committee, the late District-Attorney John McKeon. SCOTCHMEN AT DINNER,

THE ST. ANDREW'S SOCIETY FESTIVAL. CELEBRATING ITS ONE-HUNDRED-AND-TWENTY-

SEVENTH ANNIVERSARY. The large dining room at Delmonico's was gayly decorated last night with the National colors of Scotland, England and America. Over the entrance were the flags of the British Empire and the United States gracefully draped about the Scottish coat of arms. Opposite the doorway was a portrait of St. Andrew, the patron saint of the society which was celebrating its one hundred and twenty-seventh anniversary. Previons to the dinner, and several times while it was being served, William Cleland, the piper of the St. Andrew's Society, clad in a full-dress garb of Cameron plaid, announced amid hearty cheers of two hundred and fifty guests the familiar news that "The Campbells are Coming." He also played " Johnnie Cop," and other reels and marches. When the haggis was carried into the room the entire company rose and cheered as the piper preceded the procession of waiters carrying the favorite dish of the Highlands, and then gave the toast in Gaelic: "Your good health."

There were soven tables spread. Walter Watson, the president of the society sat in the place of honor. Beside him were W. Lane Booker, the British Consul-General; E. Hill, president of St. George's Society; John S. Kennedy, Hugh Roberts, president of the St. David's Society; Dr. S. B. W. McLeod, the Rev. D. Parker Morgan, associate rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest; Carlisle Norwood, jr., representing the St. Nicholas Society; the chief of the Caledonian Club; Robert Gordon, the Rev. William Wylie and the Rev. Dr. Guilbert. Among others present were Bryce Gray, James Fraser, John Paton, William A. Paton, John Mackay, William Lyall, Gilbert Fraser, British Vice-Cousul; Andrew Carnegie, William Wood, of the Board of Education ; Justice Sidney, Lawrence Turnure, Joel B. Erhardt, C. C. Norval, Gordon Macdonald, George Campbell, James Brand, Wallis C. Brand, E. H. Moen, president of the Mutual Fire Insurance Company; Andrew King, jr., E. R. Livermore, John Sleane, J. W. Goddard, Edward Owen, James Moir, James Callender, James Bingham, William Leggatt, and Mr. Belknap.

The menn was interspersed with music from Bernstein's orchestra. As the cornet solo sounded out the first notes of "Robin Adair," the entire party ceased eating and united in humming the song "Old Robin Grey" was received with applause. When the toast, "The Queen," was announced by the president, the band struck up the tune so familiar to every English-speaking person, and 250 voices sang "God save the Queen," "Hail to voices sang "God save the Queen," "Hail to the Chief," followed the announcement of the third toast, "The President." "Yankee Doodle" and "Bounie Scotland" were also on the musical programme, which closed with "Bonnie Dundee."

The full list of toasts was as follows: "The day an'a'wha honor it," "The Queen," "The President," "The land o' cakes," "The land we live in," "The State and the City of New-York," "Our sister secieties and their representatives, our welcome guests," "Our ex-Presidents," "Our new members," "Honest men and bonnie lassies," "May care and trouble never fash, but mirth and joy be wiyea'."

ADDRESS OF PRESIDENT WATSON. In presenting the first toast: "The Day an' a wha' honor it," President Watson said:

while honor it," President Watson said:

Gentlemen of the St. Andrews Society? My first pleasant duty is to return you my most hearty thanks for re-electing me to the honorabia position of your president. I feel proud of so great an honor, and any Socielman could not but feel his heart warm at seeing so fine at assemblage of his fellow countrymen. It is usual and proper on this occasion for the president to give some account of his stewardship, and I am happy to say that our good old society continues to flourish in all that is charitable and kind. As regards the work of relief, I learn from the almonor that the condition of matters has been very similar to hast year, with no lack of another terms.

[Applause.] In fact, one American gentieman told me last Monday that he believed no Scotchmen examule 1 New-York a hundred years ago, and if a few did go off fortite looks of the thing, they went no further than Governor's Island or the Bobbin's Reef Lighthouse; they were seen in a day or two quietlygoing about their business in the neighborhood of old Hanover Square. [Laughter and applause.]

I am very glad to see here so many of the moniters of our sister societies, and I look forward with pleasure to hear of all the good they also have doubtless been doing during the past year.

TWO YIEWS OF EVACUATION DAY.

TWO VIEWS OF EVACUATION DAY. The Rev. D. Parker Morgan, in responding to the toast "The land we live in," spoke jestingly of the parade on Evacuation Day. He referred to the "Boys of the 7th Regiment trying to look patient" as they marched down Fifth-ave., and told how his heart went out for them as they stood in the storm while he was safely housed. He said that he saw brave warriors-as he was told-riding in closely covered carriages, and when he looked for closely covered carriages, and when he looked for the statesmen in the carriages he recognized only
"Ben" Butler. Then he spoke of Mr. Van Arsdale,
"of flag-raising renown," who had died ten days before, and said that he was thankful the old gentleman was not in this storm.
While Mr. Morgan was speaking, Justice Gedney and several members of the 7th Regiment left the room. They afterward asked The Thibune rerecovery was that they could not listen to such an room. They afterward asked THE TRIBUNE reporter to say that they could not listen to such as address as Mr. Morgan had made. They added that they were much displeased at his references to them. William Wood, however, received applause when at the close of Mr. Morgan's address he was called upon. He said that he had far different thoughts on Monday. To him the patient, marching column, which took five hours to pass Twenty-third-st., showed him the evidence of the patriotism and valor exhibited at Valley Forge by the ancestors of these brave men which secured for America to-day the liberty that she enjoys. Mr. Wood was bern in Glasgow, but he said that he had attended the dinner of 8t. Andrew's Society in this city lifty-five years ago, and drew's Society in this city fifty-five years ago, and had since then been the president of the society. Andrew Carnegie, Dr. Guilbert, James Fraser, C. Norwood, John S. Kennedy and others made brief

A MESSENGER BOY'S CHASE OF A BURGLAR

THE FUGITIVE CORNERED AND ARRESTED. A burglar-alarm connected with the New-York Exchange for Women's Work, at No. 4 East Twentieth-st., sounded in the District Telegraph Office at Twenty-second-st, and Broadway at 8:30 o'clock last night. James Farrell, a messenger boy, was sent out to investigate. He was about to ring the bell when the door opened and a tall swarthy-faced man stepped out. "What do you want i" he asked the boy gruffly.

" Nothing," replied the lad, as he retreated to the side walk, where he waited until the man started at a rapid pace toward Fifth-ave. He ran after him, keeping a lookout for an officer. At Nineteenth-st. the man saw the lad and ran to Sixth-ave., through which he turned and fied to Eighteenth-st. to Seventh-ave. The boy was close at his heels, and to evade him the man attempted to spring on a car, but slipped and feil heavily in the street. He jumped up quickly, however, and started toward Nineteenth-st., into which he turned. A slight limp showed that he had injured himself in falling. The lad saw Officer Schmidt, of the Sixteenth Precinct, and told him his story. The officer entered No. 202 and mounted the roof, where he saw a man couching. Before he could grasp him the man sprang to the roof of No. 204, and statance of twelve feet, and the officer followed. Finally he secured the fellow. The prisoner said he was William H. Williams, age thirty-one.

An investigation at No. 4 East Twentieth-st. showed that property worth about $300 had been packed up ready to be removed and that more than one person was concerned in the burglary. him, keeping a lookout for an officer. eady to be removed and tronc one orned in the burglary.

SENATOR ANTHONY GETTING STRONGER.

Senator Anthony passed a good night on Thursday, and yesterday his condition was materially improved. He was able to get up and at in his room in the forenoon, and a few of his intimate friends were admitted to converse with him. His medical adviser hopes that he will be able to proceed to Washington in accordance with his original programme, to-morrow evening or Monday morning. Though the Senator has so far recovered as to be able to attend to his political duty, according to the doctor, he will have to exercise great care, as he is materially weakened by the attack.

MISCELLANEOUS WASHINGTON NEWS.

THE NEW SENATE RULES. Washington, Nov. 30 .- The Senate Commit-

ee on Rules was in session several hours to-day, and practically finished the revision of Senate rules. The greater part of the time was taken up in making verbal alterations and condensing the rules before agreed upon. A new rule was adopted providing for the election of officers of the Senate, a thing which has hitherto been done without any formal rule on the subject. The new rule does not change the practice from that of the past. A new rule giving control of the Senate wing of the Cap-itol, including the restaurant, to the Committee on Rules, was agreed upon. The proposed new code of joint rules was approved. DEFENDING WASHINGTON JURIES.

Washington, Nov. 30 .- Judge Wylie of the Criminal Court received this morning from the Petit Jury, whose term of service expires to-morrow, a handsome basket of flowers. In acknowledging the compliment, the Judge referred to the injurious statements and disrespectful remarks from time to time made about Washington juries, and said that, as a general rule, juries in this District were as good as could be found anywhere. Imputations which he had heard made against them were unjust. QUESTIONS FOR SENATOR SPENCER.

Washington, Nov. 30 .- R. T. Merrick, of ounsel for the Government in the proceedings against ex-

Senator Spencer for contempt of court, to-day filed his interrogatories addressed to the defendant with the clerk of the court. He is asked with regard to every supposed stopping-place on his way from Washington to Leadville, and what was the length of his stay and business in each place. In the same way he is traced back to New-York, then to Watertown across the line, and finally to Europe.

REWARDS FROM THE CZAR. Washington, Nov. 30,-Chief-Engineer Melville of the late Arctic exploring steamer Jeannette has received a letter from General Chernalyef, the Governor of Yakutsk, stating that the Czar has bestowed rewards and promotions upon all persons in Siberia who rendered assistance to the Jeannette's survivors.

PAPER MONEY OUTSTANDING.

Washington, Nov. 30.—The following is a statement of the Controller of the Currency, showing the sutstanding at date: National bank notes outstanding at date (circulation of National gold banks, $737,184, not included), $350,175,977; decrease during the last month, $1,088,826; decrease since December 1, 1882, $11,616,192. Legal tender notes outstanding on and since May 31, 1878, $346,681,016; on deposit with the Treasury to redeem notes of insolvent and liquidating banks and banks retiring circulation under Act of June 20, 1874, $36,152,101; decrease in deposit during last month, $395,793; decrease in deposit since December 1, 1882, $2,238,313.

NAVAL INTELLIGENCE.

Washington, Nov. 30,-The Navy Department has received three of the new electric search lights from France. Two have been placed on the United States ship Trenton, and the other will be used at the torpedo station, Newport. It is likely that these lights will be adopted for general use in the Navy.

Lieutemant H. I. Tremain has been detached from the New-York Navy Yard and ordered to the Shenandoah. Lieutenant Henry McRea and Naval Cadets P. J. Ryan and Charles E. Sweeting have been detached from the Yantic and ordered to the Shenandoah. These orders complete the complement of officers for the Shenandoah, and she will be ordered to join the Pacific Synadron in a few dats. Lieutenaut E. S. Prime has been ordered to the Navy Yard, New-York; Assistant Engineer George E. Bird has been detached from the Navy Yard, Boston, and ordered to the Shenandoah.

The former salary was $4,000.

"NOTHING NEW UNDER THE SUN,"-Since the adoption of standard time about 400 applications have been filed for patents for clock dials and other devices intended to present the twenty-four hours in a convenient manner. A large number of these applications have been rejected by the Patent Office upon evidence found in a musty of volume that Prince Soltykoff once possessed a watch made in the year 1547, upon the dial of which appeared the hours from one to twenty-four arranged in two consentric circles.

IS THE MISSING MEND IN THE CITY!

It was reported in Chappaqua yesterday that Henry Mend, the missing German, who was thought to have been murdered, had been heard from in New-York. A letter was received by his former employer, W. H. Car penter, asking that Mend's clothing should be sent to him at First-ave, and First-st. The letter was not signed and at First-ave, and First-st. The letter was not signed and gave no farther ciew. A TRIBINE reporter last evening called at all the houses in the vicinity, but could gain no additional information of Mend. In a German liquor store in Second-ave, the proprietor said a man had rented a room of him last Saturday. He was about twenty-five years old, of short stature, dark complexion and whiskers and looked like a farmer. He gave no name, but said that he had been at work near Poughkeepsie. On Monday he told the proprietor that he had taken a room at No. 35 East First-at, near Second-ave. Only two men were found living at this house and they were Germans who had just landed.

KILLED BY FALLING DOWN STAIRS.

WITNESSES REPEAT THE STORIES TOLD. DID THE MYSTERIOUS STRANGER WEAR A DARK

OVERCOAT !- THE LATEST CLEWS. The inquest in the Phæbe Paullin case at Orange yesterday did not throw any light on the mystery, but rather rendered its unravelment more difficult, by showing a discrepancy in the testimony of witnesses as to the dress and appearance of the stranger who was seen by so many persons apparently following Phobe Paullin on the night of the murder. The inquiry was conducted in what is known as the Council Chamber in Canfield-st. The hall was filled with a motley collection of boys, youths and men of all ages and exhibiting every phase of rusticity from the gaping mountaineer, who appeared as much entertained by the testimony as though at a circus, to the spruce country clerk who was disposed to be critical and had "clews" and "theories" about the murder. Mrs. Elizabeth Paullin was the first witness and her story was brief. She deposed to having last seen her daughter alive on Saturday afternoon and not having again cast eyes upon her until her body was brought home on the Sunday afternoon following. When asked if her daughter had "kept any company" she replied at once,

Mrs. Rachel F. Fisher, the sister of the murdered girl, was interrogated closely as to the men with whom her sister had been on terms of intimacy or friendship. She said that her sister had met frequently Jacob Yost, Frederick Smith, John Anderson and Isaac L. Meyers. These were respectable married men, and her acquaintance with them was merely of a friendly character and had the sanction and approval of her family. When asked as to her sister's acquaintance with David Pillington, the station agent, she said that her sister had once asked her, " How would you like David for a brother-in-law ?" Pillington had never called on her sister, but after her death a letter was found from " David " in her room. Martin Williams, who was arrested as a "suspect" soon after the discovery of the crime, but afterward discharged, was placed on the stand. He is a good specimen of a country ne'er do well of the Rip Van Winkle sort. His hair was unkempt, his face needed shaving, and there was a roseate glow on the end of his nose that bore testimony to his besetting sin. He testified that he and "Chet" Williams (no relation) were walking on the Eagle Rock road on Saturday evening toward Orange. About half-past 5 amounts of National bank notes and of legal tender notes o'clock they had passed a girl near Tory Corners going toward the mountain. He had taken no notice of her and could not describe her appearance. It was then dark. He knew Phœbe Paullin, but could not say whether it was her. Fifteen minutes before meeting the girl they had passed a man who was just coming out of Llewellyn Park, ear the stone-crusher. He appeared to have a light overcoat, was tall, well-dressed, gentlemanlike in appearance, had a mustache, and was apparently about twentyfive years of age.

STRANDED WHALES.

From The Boston Advertiser.

A dispatch to The Halifax Herald, from Windson, Nova Scotia, says that the school of blackfish and porpoless that came into the basin of Minas about a month ago was much larger than first reported. For several days the fish were seen sporting about in the water of the basin, feeding. Then they appeared to have lost their reckoning, and many got stranded on the bars at the entrance of the Avon River. One afternoon the whole school headed up the town on the flood tide, presenting a magnificent and novel sight as they passed the Windsor wharves. They were pursued by boats and steam-tugs, and everybody who owned a gin or could borrow one joined in the chase. A good deal of powder and lead was wested, but the number of fish obtained in that way were few. The school returned with the ceb tide, and for three days this same thing continued, until not one fish is said to have escaped to tell the sale. The largest portion of them were stranded on the mud flats, where they were left high and dry to perish. Altogether, it is said, some 300 of these monsters of the deep were secured on the Avon and St. Croix, the largest number of which were blackfish, which is a small species of whale. Some were an enormous size and would weigh nearly two tons each. A dozen or more were the and if it has all been taken care of will prove quite a source of profit. Altogether, at least 15,000 gallons of oil must have been obtained from the 300 fish secured, which should yield a profit of about $10,000. profit of about $10,000.

THE CRAZE FOR ANTIQUE RUGS.

New-York Correspondence Allanta Constitution.

No folly in fashion ever has exceeded, or ever will exceed, the current cruze in this city for antique rugs. These articles are brought from Asia, where they are woven by hand, and where some are used by Mohammedans to pray upon. They are good exhibits of industry and tasic in the blending of bright colors harmoniously into intricate patterns. Of course, the work is not so exact or symmetrical as though done by machinery. The figures vary in size, the shapes are a little irregular, and there are other blemishes inseparable from labor done with the fingers. But the dyes are fast, the wool astonishingly soft and fine, and a few years of wear imparts to the surface a peculiar and beautiful sheet. These are the plain facts about the Eastern rugs. Mark the distortion which an artistic thing suffers when subjected to popularity. If age beautifies a rug, then a rug can't be too dilapidated. That is the reasoning of the fools, or their conclusions; for to concede that they reason at all is too much. The stores are therefore stocked with rugs that are worn threadbare, that are rugged at the edges and patched in the centres, that are extravagant in price on account of these defects, and that if their condition has really been caused by the feet and knees of Mussulmans and other foul Orientals, ought to be so suggestive of irredeemable nastiness as to be intelerable in a Christian parlor.

Whisper," responded a dealer to whom I made that criticism; "in a month or so I shall have a lot of antique rugs that your sensitive stomach needn't roll at. They'll be tattered and torn—bet your life; but it'll be the neat and quick work of machinery. I imported a cargo of fresh, new rugs, and they're now being worn out by machines of my own invention. It's simply a carpet-beating apparatus, runs ten times as fast and a hundred times as long as it usually is to clean a piece of carpet; and when a rug gets through it is willing to swear, solumin and conscientious, that it has been knelt on by greasy Turks for a thousand years."
